

Our mission is to provide Christ-centered care
and support to children and families in need.

2016 Accomplishments

- Enabled 645 children to develop meaningful friendships with caring mentors
- Helped 1,146 children and their families overcome obstacles and stay together
- Instilled hope in 569 foster children and supported their foster parents
- Provided residential treatment for 103 abused and/or neglected children
- Empowered 28 children as they transitioned from foster care to independent living as young adults

We serve children who have suffered from abuse, neglect and/or abandonment.

We also serve children whose families are experiencing other types of crises, such as the death of a parent, divorce, illness, job loss or parental drug and/or alcohol abuse.

Foster Care Case Management

Family Solutions for Kids

Medical Case Management

Residential Treatment

Transitional Living

Therapeutic Mentoring

Our mission is to provide Christ-centered care
and support to children and families in need.

2016 Accomplishments

- Enabled 645 children to develop meaningful friendships with caring mentors
- Helped 1,146 children and their families overcome obstacles and stay together
- Instilled hope in 569 foster children and supported their foster parents
- Provided residential treatment for 103 abused and/or neglected children
- Empowered 28 children as they transitioned from foster care to independent living as young adults

We serve children who have suffered from abuse, neglect and/or abandonment.

We also serve children whose families are experiencing other types of crises, such as the death of a parent, divorce, illness, job loss or parental drug and/or alcohol abuse.

Foster Care Case Management

Family Solutions for Kids

Medical Case Management

Residential Treatment

Transitional Living

Therapeutic Mentoring

When 10-year-old Karl seemed unable to focus on his studies, a concerned teacher spoke with Ed and Linda Johnson. They realized that their frequent arguments were damaging to Karl. Fortunately, the teacher referred them to Family Solutions for Kids, a PCHAS counseling program that occurs in the family home.

Our therapist met one-on-one with Karl to work through the sadness and anger that was disrupting his schoolwork. In their own sessions, the parents learned how to communicate more effectively with each other.

Six months of therapy has had a profound impact on the family. Ed and Linda's relationship has improved, arguments have become rare occurrences, and Karl's grades are back on track.

PCHAS programs are funded by state contracts, grants from foundations, and donations from churches and individuals. Counseling is available, free of charge, to St. Louis area residents.

When 10-year-old Karl seemed unable to focus on his studies, a concerned teacher spoke with Ed and Linda Johnson. They realized that their frequent arguments were damaging to Karl. Fortunately, the teacher referred them to Family Solutions for Kids, a PCHAS counseling program that occurs in the family home.

Our therapist met one-on-one with Karl to work through the sadness and anger that was disrupting his schoolwork. In their own sessions, the parents learned how to communicate more effectively with each other.

Six months of therapy has had a profound impact on the family. Ed and Linda's relationship has improved, arguments have become rare occurrences, and Karl's grades are back on track.

PCHAS programs are funded by state contracts, grants from foundations, and donations from churches and individuals. Counseling is available, free of charge, to St. Louis area residents.

Presbyterian Children's
Homes and ServicesSM

Transitional Living

Most children learn the life skills that pave the way to independence – practical things like how to open a checking account, live on a budget and find work – from their parents. But Wanda's parents had abandoned her years ago. Wanda never found a permanent home through foster care and was thinking of dropping out of school to support herself. "I was feeling a little lost," she admits.

PCHAS' Transitional Living team stepped in to help. It gave her the stability to finish high school and enroll in the culinary arts program at a junior college. A year later, Wanda moved out of our Transitional Living home and into her very first apartment. She has worked hard and has overcome great obstacles. Best of all, she knows that if she has questions or challenges, she can still turn to PCHAS staff for guidance and support.

PCHAS programs are funded by state contracts, grants from foundations, and donations from churches and individuals.

Presbyterian Children's
Homes and ServicesSM

Transitional Living

Most children learn the life skills that pave the way to independence – practical things like how to open a checking account, live on a budget and find work – from their parents. But Wanda's parents had abandoned her years ago. Wanda never found a permanent home through foster care and was thinking of dropping out of school to support herself. "I was feeling a little lost," she admits.

PCHAS' Transitional Living team stepped in to help. It gave her the stability to finish high school and enroll in the culinary arts program at a junior college. A year later, Wanda moved out of our Transitional Living home and into her very first apartment. She has worked hard and has overcome great obstacles. Best of all, she knows that if she has questions or challenges, she can still turn to PCHAS staff for guidance and support.

PCHAS programs are funded by state contracts, grants from foundations, and donations from churches and individuals.